BLOOD TRANSFUSION NOT GOOD FOR MARRIED FOLK
[By Latest Mail]
PARIS.—It is often dangerous to transfuse a man's blood to the veins of his wife or a woman's blood to the veins of her husband, according to Dr. Wallach and Dr. Levadite of the Pasteur Institute. They have made many experiments in transfus-ing blood from one to the other of married couples. They find serious harm may be done to the recipient if the surgeon does not satisfy himself by a test that no blood incompatibility exists.

DIVINE POWER AIDS MEDICINE SAY PROBERS

"Faith Cure" Is Effective in Functional Disorders, Is the Report of Committee.

FAMOUS SCIENTISTS GIVE RESULTS OF THEIR STUDY
Clerical and Medical Board, Appointed in 1911, Give Out
Report of Committee

[By Latest Mail]
LONDON.—An important contribution to one of the foremost topics of the day is found in the report of "The Committee on Spiritual Healing, or Faith Cure," appointed by the Conference of the Clerical and Medical Professions held in October, 1911.

The committee, which is composed of prominent clergymen and doctors, in its conclusions, says:

"The members of the committee fully recognize that operations of divine power is exercised in conformity with will, and they desire to express their belief in the efficacy of prayer.
They reverently believe, however, divine power is exercised in conformity with and through the operation of natural laws.

"With advancing knowledge of these laws, increasing benefits are being secured for mankind through human instrumentality. Especially is this the case in the healing of disorders of the body and the mind, and they consider that spiritual ministrations should be recognized equally with medical ministrations, as carrying God's blessing to the sick.

"The committee is of the opinion that the physical results of what is called faith or spiritual healing does not prove different from those of mental healing or healing by suggestion.

"The committee recognizes that suggestion is more effectively exercised by some persons than others, which would seem to explain the gifts claimed by 'healers.' The use of religious influences does not differ essentially from non-religious appeals to the mind, yet the former are often more potent.

"Faith or spiritual healing can be permanently effective only in functional disorders as distinguished from organic disorders, and the committee warns against resorting to healers and postponing medical treatment.

"Spiritual ministrations may contribute to the success of medical treatment, and we desire to see more importance attached to them, but we strongly deprecate the independent treatment of disease by irresponsible and unqualified persons."

Prominent Men on Committee.
The membership of the committee includes Herbert E. Ryle, dean of Westminster; H. H. Henson, dean of Durham; William R. Inge, dean of St. Paul's; Henry L. Paget, bishop of Stepney, and Archbishop Sinclair.
Among the medical members are Sir Dyce Duckworth, Sir Richard Douglass Powell, Theodore B. Hyslop, and Sir Thomas Clifford Allbutt.

The witnesses examined by the committee differed in their definitions of spiritual and mental healing. Some regarded the former as a divine interposition above the laws of nature, while most of them connected spiritual healing today with the gifts of healing of the apostolic church, saying they thought these had long been dormant, although never wholly interrupted.

The witnesses differed widely as to whether moral excellence in the healers or the healed was essential for success.

Most of them gave convincing evidence of beneficial results in functional nervous disorders and cases of alcoholism and drug-taking, but not one gave satisfactory evidence of any case of organic disease cured by spiritual or faith healing alone.
